Subject: Wage loss

statute and federal regulations defined that wage loss' time of injury is the last date the employee worked at a DOE facility.

If the employee can provide authentic documentation of an early work restriction, change of work duties, or must be dismissed from work.

A covered illness is defined an illness from exposure to the toxic substance. Since the DEEOIC has established that exposure to a certain toxic substance aggravated contributed to or caused the illness then should the employee continue working and be exposed to the toxic substance. Policy is not binding, law is binding and the law states the employee shall have wage loss compensation.
